

1. The antenna has a peak.
Anything near it that changes
the local optics moves the peak.

2. The signal is bigger than the noise, but not 3x bigger.
One antenna is not enough.

3. Noise averages down as $\sqrt{N}$.
Spread the antennas far enough
apart and the signal wins.

